CANDY

What are those things fun and sweet?
They can be meal or a treat!

One bite it's if you take,
You'll sure forget all your aches

There are just so many shapes,
Some are like apple and some are like grapes

Those cotton candies with stick,
Will melt in your mouth so quick

Candies and chocolate bars,
Have stars shining more than stars

I could eat these as all time meal,
But i won't be allowed even if I appeal

But don't have candies a lot
I warned you, so you better not.

DO MARKS Guarantee A SUCCESSFUL Career ?

In our society, children are brought up with a mindset that way must score high marks in order to succeed in life. Each parent has expectations that their kid will excel in his / her career. From childhood till 12th grade board exams, kids have heard from teachers, parents and media that they must work hard and score marks above 90%. Well, it's not bad to ask children to study hard and excel in their studies But the question is, do these 90% marks guarantee a successful career? So, the answer is -No, they don't .Scoring 95% marks doesn't decide one's future. It's the hard work, attitude, personality, knowledge and the desire to achieve one's goal decides their future.

Being not so bright student doesn't mean that there is no career or a successful job for them. In this case, IAS Awanish Sharan can be a good example. He scored 44.5% in 10th, 65% in 12th and 60.1%% in Graduation. Well, I don't think these are good marks according to teachers, toppers and parents point of view. Am I right? Even though he was not good in academics, he was a person with a great desire to achieve his dreams. He worked hard and studied day and night to achieve his aim and finally in 2009 he cleared the toughest exam of India, UPSC securing AIR- 10. His hard work and dedication made him achieve his goal despite his low marks. Now that he is such a successful personality no one is going to ask his percentage of 10th and 12th. I don't mean to say that we shouldn't study and think that we will do hard work and become successful in future. we should build a strong base since early age and shouldn't worry much about one's low marks.

Can I get my childhood back?

My mother tells me about it,
And I also remember a bit,
The time when I was too innocent,
The time which was superb and excellent.
I used to play with my toys,
And my life filled with happiness and joy.
Life was then exiting and alluring.
But now, it is becoming boring,
I can't forget those days of mine,
In darkness of my life, like the jewels, they all shine,
By chance, due to good deeds of mine, If god will ask me, for my wish, at any time,
I will wish to become smart and good,
And only thing that I want back is just my childhood.

I HAVE NO TIME TO ENJOY

*I have no time to enjoy my life
and see how stars and moon shine in the sky*

*I have no time to enjoy my life,
and have some free time.*

*I have no time to enjoy my life,
as I am busy in my daily life
I have no time to enjoy my life,
to make my life colorful*

Life without fun is kind of colorless, but the life with fun is colorful and beautiful

Are news channels really a source of information, or do they promote war and pessimism ?

If there is any one off beat tradition that every Indian household religiously follows, it is that of picking up the TV remote and switching on a news channels every morning. News channels have become a prominent part of today's life, and they have sneaked into the lives of people acutely that it was almost shocking to not have an elder at home saying " switch to a news channel instead of watching such useless shows". News channels like ZEE news, Aaj-Tak, and India TV have been in the frame for a long time now, but are they really serving the purpose of making people aware, or have they slowly become a source of generating revenue now ? Many people might still want to believe that news channels are essential to one's life and add to a better quality of life in terms of awareness and knowledge, but many researchers all over the world have concluded something entirely different. In a study conducted by Wendy M Johnson, and Graham C.L Davey at the University of Manchester, it is seen that almost 65% of people who were exposed to news throughout the day for many months developed several mental health issues like anxiety and depression in comparison to those were not exposed to it, and that was not because the news in itself was negative or depressing, but because news channels exaggerated everything to a point where it became delusional and unsafe for people. Over the years, the motive of news channels have shifted from making people aware to increasing TRP to generate maximum viewership news reporters are sometimes bribed to show specific news on the channels which are laced with negativity, aggression, and pessimism, which in turn promote war and violence. Sometimes this phenomenon is so subtle that people fail to realise how they are being influenced and manipulated. This promotes cynical thinking amongst people and make them sceptical of everything around them. This trend, if continued for a long time, would lead to irrevocable repercussions. Thus we conclude that, it's high time people become aware about how news channels are affecting their lives negatively and shift to better ways of gaining awareness and knowledge, otherwise that day isn't far when people would be at the brick of losing sanity. -

LONELINESS

I too have known loneliness.
I too have known what it is to feel Misunderstood,
Rejected, and suddenly
Not at all beautiful.
Oh, Mother Earth,
Your comfort is great, your arms never withhold.
It has saved my life to know this.
Your rivers flowing, your roses opening
In the morning.
Oh, motion of tenderness!

THE PERFECT PLACE OF MINE

THE PERFECT PLACE OF MINE

I want to live alone in a village
Where people are not always in rage,

Greenery to be seen everywhere
No buildings there anywhere,

I'll find peace there
And never come back here,

People are kind
Ones which are not easy to find,

So I'll start my research
And travel from place to place,

I'll do this search in a haste
And try my best to find such a place.

Himachal

The Land of Gods

On 12th of august, we decided to go to Himachal Pradesh by train. Unfortunately, our train got canceled so we had to go by bus instead. At first, we went to Kashmiri Gate in Delhi to catch our bus. We reached Himachal Pradesh at seven in the morning. There, we walked almost 1.5km to see the Brijeshwari temple. On reaching, we prayed and started moving around the holy place. Then, we rested for some time and later booked an auto for Chamunda Devi Temple. On the way there, we were amazed by the beauty of the lofty mountains and the most aesthetic rivers. There was also a huge statue of Lord Hanuman. And that's how my first day in Himachal was spent. On 14th, we woke up super early and went to the Jwala Ji Mandir. The most unique thing about this place is that there's a blue flame that has been burning here flawlessly since decades. It is said that once Akbar tried to extinguish the flame, but he failed. Mysterious indeed! We were supposed to pick a bus for Chintapurni Mandir, but we couldn't because at that time, there was only one train left for Haryana from Pathankot. The bus to the railway station somehow dropped us before our destination. We saw a car going by and asked the driver if he would mind dropping us to the station and the kind man agreed. We rushed in the train and settled down. It was 9 pm and our stomachs were rumbling as we hadn't eaten a single grain since morning. We had some food and drifted to sleep. Dawn had arrived and so did Gurgaon. Since it was independence day, people were waving tirangas. An uncle painted a small tricolor on my cheek. And that is how one of the most memorable journeys of mine came to an end. --
